The lights have been strung, the party invitations have been sent, and the mall Santas have taken their red costumes out of storage. The holiday season seems to sneak up on us every year, so if you still haven't found the perfect white elephant item to bring to this year's upcoming soirees, don't sweat.

Our advice? Skip the grocery store fruit basket or flowers that'll die in a matter of days and go for a stellar bottle instead. Not only does gin mix into many popular cocktails, the category's innovation seems to be never-ending, meaning there's something here for everyone — even the acquaintance whose bar cart is overflowing with recent releases. Read on for the best gins to give everyone on your list — from cocktail newbies to collectors and connoisseurs.

Best Splurge Gin

GINRAW

The combined brainchild of a chef, sommelier, mixologist, and master perfumer, GINRAW is a celebration of Catalonia's culinary scene. Its production finishes with a third distillation in rotary valves, allowing the process to take place at just 75 degrees Fahrenheit. This low-temperature distillation allows the gin to retain its freshness and botanical brightness, resulting in a citrus-forward liquid that truly shines alongside Campari in a Negroni.
